

Communications Assistance for Law Enforcement Act

Venture Communications complies with the Communications Assistance for Law Enforcement Act of 1994 (CALEA) and all applicable federal and state laws requiring telecommunications and broadband service providers to support lawful electronic surveillance activities.

Venture Communications maintains the necessary technical capabilities, security controls, and internal procedures to assist law enforcement agencies in conducting lawful intercepts and information requests, when properly authorized by court order or other valid legal process.

The company is committed to safeguarding customer privacy and data security while fulfilling its obligations under CALEA. Any lawful requests for information must be submitted through official channels and will be handled in accordance with applicable legal requirements and Venture Communication's internal compliance procedures.
